ORDER

On September 17, 2021, SBA Towers VII, LLC (SBA) filed a motion requesting to intervene in this matter. SBA stated that it has a wireless tower approximately 0.2352 miles from the location of the proposed tower for which New Cingular Wireless PCS, LLC d/b/a AT&T Mobility (AT&T) requested a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity (CPCN).

SBA stated that AT&T is currently a tenant on the SBA tower, that AT&T is the sole tenant on SBA's tower, and that, from its place on the SBA Tower, AT&T can and already does broadcast its wireless signal to the surrounding area in nearly exactly the same manner, and providing essentially the same coverage, proposed by AT&T in its application.¹

SBA argued that, as an adjacent property owner, it has a special interest in this matter that is not being adequately represented because no other adjacent property owners are parties to this proceeding. SBA further argued that, if it is allowed to intervene, SBA can present issues and develop facts that will assist the Commission in fully considering this matter. Specifically, SBA argued the tower would be duplicative because it would add no additional coverage. SBA claimed that it commissioned a study showing that there is little to no additional coverage provided by AT&T's proposed tower. SBA further claimed that it has relevant information regarding the quality of service that other telecommunications providers in the area can offer that would assist the Commission in deciding this matter without unduly complicating or disrupting the proceedings.²

DISCUSSION

The only person with a statutory right to intervene in a proceeding before the Commission is the Attorney General.³ Intervention by all others is permissive and is within the sole discretion of the Commission.⁴

The standard for intervention is twofold. Commission regulation 807 KAR 5:001 Section 4(11) provides that a motion to intervene, "shall state his or her interest in the case and how an intervention is likely to present issues or develop facts that will assist the commission in fully considering the matter without unduly complicating or disrupting the proceedings." The regulation further provides that:

The commission shall grant a person leave to intervene if the commission finds that he or she has made a timely motion for intervention and that he or she has a special interest in the case that is not otherwise adequately represented or that his or her intervention is likely to present issues or to develop facts that assist the commission in fully considering the matter without unduly complicating or disrupting the proceedings.

It is under these criteria that the Commission reviews a motion for intervention.

Further, it is well established that “there is the statutory limitation under KRS 278.040(2) that the person seeking intervention must have an interest in the “rates” or “service” of a utility since those are the only two subjects under the jurisdiction of the PSC.”⁵

Based on a review of the pleadings at issue and being otherwise sufficiently advised, the Commission finds that SBA does not have a special interest in the proceeding over which the Commission has jurisdiction that is not otherwise adequately represented and is not likely to present issues or develop facts that will assist the Commission in considering this matter without unduly complicating the proceedings, for the reasons discussed below.

SBA did not provide any evidence that it receives service from or is a customer of AT&T. SBA claimed that its interest is not based as a competitor to the proposed tower, but as an adjacent property owner.⁶ The only issue that SBA asserted that it can develop for the Commission is how AT&T’s proposed tower will impact the service offered by telecommunication providers in the area. Which, as SBA stated, is only SBA.

Despite its claim otherwise, the evidence provided by SBA is that it is a competitor of the proposed tower, whose primary interest is to remain the only tower in that area without competition. Based upon the evidence of record, the Commission concludes that the only interest SBA has in AT&T's rates and services is as a competitor. It is well established that the Commission has denied intervention to a competitor of an applicant who does not demonstrate an interest in the applicant's rates or services, other than an interest as a competitor. For example, in Case No. 2004-00423, the Commission denied intervention in a CPCN case to a movant whose bid in a competitive power solicitation with the applicant was unsuccessful.⁷ In that case, the Commission found that the movant's only interest was a pecuniary interest in challenging the rejection of its bid, and that those interests were not aligned with the interest of ratepayers. In Case No. 2011-00124, the Commission denied intervention in a merger case because movant's only interest was as a competitive supplier of retail electric and natural gas.⁸ In Case No. 2012-00136, the Commission denied intervention in a pipeline replacement case to a movant whose only interest was as a competitive supplier of natural gas.⁹ Finally, in Case No. 2019-00176, the Commission denied SBA's motion to intervene in a similar matter, finding that SBA's only interest was strictly commercial and lies in ensuring that no other facilities are built, which would allow SBA to remain the only tower in the area with no competition to drive down rents.¹⁰

¹⁰ Case No. 2019-00176, Electronic Application of New Cingular Wireless PCS, LLC d/b/a AT&T Mobility for Issuance of a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity to Construct a Wireless Communications Facility in the Commonwealth of Kentucky in the County of Casey (Ky. PSC Oct. 1, 2019). The Commission has denied SBA's motions to intervene 17 times, finding each time that SBA is a competitor and that its only interest in AT&T's rates and service is as a competitor. See, e.g., Case No.

Based upon the evidence of record and Commission precedent, the Commission further finds that SBA's interest in remaining the only wireless communication facility in the area fails to rise to the level of a special interest that must be protected through intervention. Nor will SBA be likely to present issues or develop facts that assist the Commission in deciding the matter. This is because, as noted above, SBA's interest is as a competitor with an interest in keeping tower rents high by limiting the number of towers. In addition to being contrary to Commission precedent, SBA's interest is contrary to one of the stated purposes of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, which is to promote competition.¹¹ SBA's interest as a competitor is also contrary to KRS 278.546(4), which states that market-based competition benefits consumers.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that SBA failed to satisfy the regulatory requirements to grant intervention, and therefore its motion to intervene should be denied.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that SBA's motion to intervene is denied.
